THE YEAR IN FIGURES

The Associated Board of the Royal Schools of Music is a charitable company established for the benefit of music education by four Royal Schools of Music in the UK:

Royal Academy of Music

Royal College of Music

Royal Northern College of Music

Royal Scottish Academy of Music and Drama

The Associated Board's core activity is the operation of an authoritative and internationally recognised system of exams and assessments to encourage and motivate players and singers at all levels through the provision of goals and the measurement of progress.

As the world leader in its field, the Associated Board currently conducts more than 600,000 music exams each year in 90 different countries.

ABRSM (Publishing) Limited is one of the UK's leading music publishers, whose publications support the exams, provide additional repertoire and contribute to music education. The Associated Board also provides professional development services for instrumental and singing teachers through its widely acclaimed Certificate of Teaching course (CT ABRSM) and a range of seminars and workshops.

Our principal objective is to maintain and develop the services and products, which we provide to music teachers and students to the highest standards. We also seek to play a significant role in influencing political debate in favour of music education.

REVIEW OF THE YEAR

Richard Morris, Associated Board
Chief Executive, reviews the year.

Introduction

In sharp contrast to global economic trends and the unsettled political environment, the Associated Board had an outstanding year in 2002. Candidate numbers increased by 4.5% in the UK and by a massive 7.5% internationally, taking total entries nicely above 600,000 for the first time in the Associated Board's history. Within these figures, it was good to see significant upward movement in entries for Theory of Music exam, particularly in the UK, countering a gradual decline in recent years. Entries for the new diploma exams held steady at the excellent level of around 3,000 candidates per annum. Alongside these results, the Associated Board's publishing company, led by Leslie East, achieved record sales of £4.4 million, exceeding its previous ceiling by 12%.

After the year-end, Lord Burns GCB was appointed to the Governing Body of the Associated Board on the nomination of the Royal Academy of Music. Lord Burns succeeds David Richards CBE, to whose distinguished service to the Associated Board I paid tribute in the Annual Review for 2001. The Associated Board is also bidding farewell to two senior executives at the start of 2003: Martin Teale, who retires after no less than 34 years' service as Syllabus Secretary, and Michelle James, Head of Marketing, who leaves the Associated Board at the start of her maternity leave in March. I would like to thank them both very warmly for their respective major contributions to the Associated Board's work.

I mentioned in last year's Annual Review our ongoing dialogue with the four Royal Schools for further strengthening the links between us. One outcome from this process was the first Associated Board Scholars' Concert held at the end of May. It was a great pleasure to welcome scholars representing all four Royal Schools to perform in front of a 'family' audience at our exams and performance venue at Portland Place.

UK and Ireland Examinations

The growth in UK candidates in 2002 increased still further the demands made upon examiners, Honorary Local Representatives (HLRs) and staff at Portland Place in ensuring the maintenance of the highest professional and service standards for all teachers and candidates. Nearly 600 examiners were engaged to conduct the UK exams and the number of public exam centres increased to 347 throughout the country. Twenty four High Scorers' Concerts were held during 2002 to celebrate the achievements of the most successful candidates and this ever-popular concept was refreshed and enlivened with new colourful designs being created for tickets, posters and programmes.

During the year the UK and Ireland Exams Administration Department, headed by Penny Milsom, further strengthened connections between head office, HLRs and all those entering candidates for exams. A new personal card was produced for all 60,000 applicants, eight seminars for HLRs were held across the country, attracting the highest ever attendance, and a complete review was conducted of the HLR Guide, which both sets out the wide range of tasks and responsibilities undertaken and allows for the sharing of best practice.

As usual the Associated Board mounted a wide range of seminars for teachers throughout the UK on exam-related topics. Over 1,000 teachers attended seminars in Birmingham, Bristol, Glasgow, Inverness, London, Manchester and Newcastle on the upcoming piano syllabus for 2003 to 2004 and 245 teachers attended seminars in London and Manchester on Grade 5 Theory. We continued our programme of jazz workshops and courses with one-day workshops in Manchester, London and Birmingham, a residential jazz weekend at the Benslow Music Trust in Hertfordshire and a further one-week residential jazz summer school also at Benslow Music Trust.

International Examinations

The long-running growth trend in candidates from outside the UK accelerated sharply in 2002. There was double-digit percentage growth in entries not just in our major market in Hong Kong but also in several other territories where the Associated Board is already well established, including India, Indonesia, Macau, Sri Lanka, Taiwan and the USA. In total 303 separate examiner tours were arranged and conducted during 2002, which involved 193 examiners working in a total of 88 countries. New exam centres were opened in Australia, Germany, the Faroe Islands, South Africa and Thailand during the year.

The management of this remarkable growth has been accompanied by significant strengthening of our international administration capabilities, by increased staff travel overseas and by the organisation of a full programme of professional development activities, particularly in the major markets in South East Asia. The growth in diploma entries, coupled with the organisation of diploma award ceremonies for the first time in Hong Kong, Malaysia, Singapore and Indonesia, have necessitated the creation of the new post of International Diplomas Co-ordinator.

In view of heightened tensions in many parts of the world during 2002, we carried out a reappraisal of all our examiner support mechanisms for international tours, resulting in revisions to the content of examiner briefings and the establishment of emergency protocols. During the year we also conducted a comprehensive review of the Associated Board's travel arrangements and, following presentations by a number of alternative agencies, appointed Statesman Travel to be the Associated Board's consultants.

Tim Arnold, Head of International Operations, and senior colleagues in the International Department made a series of visits to overseas countries for both administrative and promotional purposes during the year. I was particularly pleased myself to visit all the major Associated Board centres in India for the first time, as well as revisiting Sri Lanka, and to host a major concert in Madrid. The concert in Madrid brought together performers from all parts of Spain in celebration of the Associated Board's 20th anniversary of conducting exams in that country. Mirroring the activity in the UK, more than 20 High Scorers' Concerts were held around the world and greatly enjoyed by performers and audiences alike.

Examiners, Syllabuses and Quality Assurance

I reported last year on the action the Associated Board had taken in many areas to strengthen the quality assurance aspects of its work, against a backdrop of public concern about the reliability and consistency of national exams. In 2002, recognising the continuously growing demand for our services, we furthered this process and took action to boost the rate of recruitment to our panel of practical examiners. This led to additional activity, not just in advertising and interviewing, but in all our procedures for selection, training, monitoring and moderating of examiners. Alongside this we conducted a review of the terms of engagement of examiners, which has led to improvements in overall benefits for both UK and international examining work for the current year and beyond. The processes for monitoring the work of the theory panel, which now consists of 87 examiners, were also refined during the year and additional security measures were put in place, including the production of an extended range of papers for use internationally. All the guidance given by the Associated Board to its examiners is now brought together in a new Examiner Handbook, which includes an uncompromising statement on the Associated Board's commitment to equal opportunities and treatment.

In the autumn we launched the latest biennial Piano & Bowed Strings Syllabus setting new repertoire for 2003 and 2004 for piano, viola and double bass, alongside the 2003 Harp, Organ, Guitar, Harp, Percussion, Singing and Ensembles Syllabus, incorporating new repertoire for guitar.

The bulk of the work carried out on syllabuses in 2002, however, related to the two major projects, jazz and Music

Medals, scheduled respectively for launch in 2003 and 2004. As reported last year, the jazz project builds on the success of the Associated Board's jazz piano syllabus, extending the exams at Grades 1 to 5 to cover trumpet, trombone, saxophone and clarinet. This highly innovative project, which has required the arrangement and moderation of over 300 pieces, as well as the development of a host of publications centred on The AB Real Book, will be launched in June this year.

Music Medals is the name given to an even more radical development by the Associated Board in the creation of new assessments at the earliest stages of learning for music students who are being taught in groups. This work, foreshadowed in last year's Annual Review, reached the stage of a major pilot project in the autumn, with approximately 180 instrumental music teachers, working in 33 Music Services across the country, trialling the materials with their pupils over a full term. Although the initial pilot has been based on syllabuses for just flute, trumpet and violin, it is intended that over time Music Medals will be made available for all those instruments which are commonly taught in groups. Work will continue on this very major project throughout the current year.

Following on from the accreditation of the Associated Board's graded exams within the National Qualifications Framework in 2000, both Philip Munday, Director of Examinations, and Nigel Scaife, Syllabus Principal, were appointed members of the UCAS Expert Group for determining the points which would be attributable to Grades 6, 7 and 8 for the purpose of university admissions. We were pleased to be able to announce both the principle and the detail of UCAS points attribution to these graded exams in October 2002. During the year the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority confirmed accreditation of the new jazz qualifications at Grades 1 to 5 and after the year-end, accreditation was also confirmed for the entire range of Associated Board diplomas at Levels 4 and 5 in the National Qualifications Framework.

Publishing

The main publishing event of the year was the publication of the Selected Piano Examinations Pieces 2003–2004. In their bright green covers, the eight graded albums provided customers with a representative selection (virtually 50%) of the pieces listed on the entire piano syllabus. Each piece had been re-edited and re-engraved to the usual high ABRSM Publishing standards. As testimony to the attraction of these albums, not merely as exam repertory but also as resource books for teaching, study and practice, sales always exceed candidate entries by two to one.

Recordings of the complete piano syllabus were also produced. This process was, in 2002, taken back in-house and the approach changed so that seven pianists were used rather than one, with these distinguished performers contributing superb exemplar performances for the guidance of students and teachers. Further guidance was available in the form of the Teaching Notes on Piano Examination Pieces, again written by the Associated Board Chief Examiner, Clara Taylor, and Anthony Williams in an accessible and stimulating style.

Alongside the traditional issue of the immediate past papers for theory of music exams (for 2001), we also produced Chinese language versions of the papers from 2000. Another area of support for the exam process was the publication of two new Prep Test books. Like the piano and violin books before them, the guitar and recorder albums are brightly illustrated and full of useful material for pupils starting out on the exam path.

Publishing initiatives during 2002 included the first publication of our standard theory books in Spanish to support one of our growing overseas markets, plus the latest Time Pieces volumes, this time for viola, providing excellent repertoire for young players and a basic selection of pieces from the current syllabus. A further five books in the First Discovery: Music series were issued - this time on Bach, Berlioz, Debussy, Handel and Vivaldi - to add to the critically-acclaimed first five, which The Bookseller had said would 'prove to be an invaluable introduction to classical music for young children.'

On top of this, ABRSM Publishing was deeply engrossed in the development of the exciting suite of publications that will be published in 2003 to support the expanded jazz syllabus and the extensive range of support materials for Music Medals. Nevertheless, time was still found for the completion of two other purely publishing innovations. In May 2002, at the Royal Over-Seas League in London,

Richard Jones' edition of Bach's The Art of Fugue was introduced to an enthusiastic audience. This beautiful edition of an enigmatic and problematic work was enhanced by an accompanying double CD of the complete edition performed by the distinguished harpsichordist Davitt Moroney. Later in the year, in the appropriately historic surroundings of the Novartis Foundation in Portland Place, the publication of the Performer's Guides to music of the Baroque, Classical and Romantic periods was marked by a heart-warming occasion which drew together contributors, journalists and staff to celebrate the launch of this pioneering set of books.

Professional Development

The 2001-2002 Certificate of Teaching course (CT ABRSM) was successfully completed by 158 teachers in the UK, of whom 121 attended an awards ceremony held at the Royal College of Music's Britten Theatre on 24 July 2002. The guest speaker was Lord Puttnam of Queensgate and music was provided by two Associated Board Scholars, Gabriella Swallow and Timothy Sidford. There are now approximately 135 students midway through the 2002-2003 course at eight regional centres in the UK.

The 2001-2002 Singapore CT ABRSM course ended in January 2002 and the 2001-2002 Hong Kong course ended in April 2002. The fourth intake to the course in Hong Kong began their studies in July 2001 with Course Leader, Walter Blair, and the fifth intake to the course in Singapore began in April 2001 with Bill Thomson, Associated Board South East Asia Regional Consultant, as Course Leader.

The Centenary Travel Grant programme continued in 2002 with a visit to Cyprus. The Associated Board Director of Professional Development, Richard Crozier, worked with two CT ABRSM mentors, Anne Allcock and Peter Noke, to deliver two courses, each of three days duration, to teachers in both parts of the island.

The scope of the Associated Board's Professional Development Programme in Malaysia and Singapore was extended so as to provide a series of seminars across the region in both April and September. The Professional Development Programme was also introduced for the first time in both Hong Kong and Indonesia. Altogether these events were attended by more than 1700 teachers during 2002. The Associated Board's first Professional Development Conference for teachers in South East Asia took place in Penang at the end of November. The presenters included Bill Thomson, Richard Crozier, Mark Ray and Nils Franke. I gave an address to the delegates about the Associated Board's work and there was a piano recital by Loo Bang Hean, a former Associated Board Scholar.

During the year the Professional Development Department undertook significant additional responsibilities relating to the promotion of the Music Medals project referred to above, including the organisation of the pilot project with Music Services across the UK.

Administration and Information Technology

Under the direction of Tim Leates, Director of Finance and Administration, work was undertaken in 2002 to strengthen the Associated Board's position in two areas of compliance. A major exercise was conducted in the context of corporate planning into the identification and management of risk. This has led to the creation of a risk register which not only lists significant risks but also assesses seriousness, likelihood and the effectiveness of mitigation strategies. Although the Associated Board is not an educational institution, we are very conscious of our child protection responsibilities in relation to both exams and professional development services, where there may be unsupervised contact between those engaged by the Associated Board and children. We are therefore developing child protection policies and are in the process of implementing disclosure procedures for relevant members of staff, examiners, mentors and HLRs. This process will continue during the current year.

In August a new telephone system was introduced with the aim of better meeting the needs of our customers. This system will also allow the integration of telephone and data systems in the medium term. With almost one third of UK exam entries now being received online, a new online entry form was developed, incorporating provision for online payment, and this will allow for a further expansion of online facilities in the future. As mentioned in last year's Annual Review, we have set up successful arrangements for online entries from Singapore and this will be extended to other countries in the current year and beyond. Progress was also made in 2002 in the closer integration of the various databases within the Associated Board, so as to establish overarching customer contact systems accessible to all departments. We greatly value the extra flexible lower ground floor space available at Portland Place. During 2002 two new Steinway grand pianos were acquired to service the increasing number of training days, exams and other musical events which are now being conducted on the Associated Board's premises.

Music Education

In 2002 the Associated Board maintained its sponsorship support for both Music for Youth and the Federation of Music Services. The Regional Festivals of Music for Youth are as popular as ever and it is particularly pleasing to learn that in 2003 they will be extended to an additional six venues, taking the total number of children participating up to a record level of over 50,000. We remain convinced of the vital importance of the contribution to music education made by the Federation of Music Services and have agreed to increase the level of sponsorship for three years from 2003.

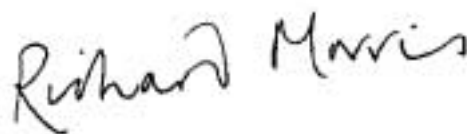

Music education has remained high on the political agenda. During the year the Department for Education and Skills, acting in conjunction with the Department for Culture Media and Sport (DCMS) and the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority, established a National Music Education Forum for regular debate and consultation on music education issues and initiatives. Both Richard Crozier and I are members of that group. The DCMS has been particularly active in seeking to promote music education through both its Creative Partnerships and Artsmark schemes as well as in its continuing commitment to the National Foundation for Youth Music. It is also noteworthy that the concept of Specialist Schools has now been extended to include a specialism in music.

Progress towards implementation of the government's pledge of entitlement of primary school children to learn a musical instrument was disappointingly slow in 2002 and there was also little progress in the critical area of teacher training for both classroom and instrumental teachers. Despite the good number of new initiatives, such as those mentioned above, opportunities for children to learn from suitably trained and qualified teachers remain the essential precondition for sustainable long-term improvement in music education.

Conclusion

There is much to celebrate in the achievements of 2002, due largely to the accelerating pace of collaboration amongst departments at Portland Place and all those concerned with the Associated Board's work and mission. The growing interdependence between Examinations, Publishing and Professional Development is proving to be a very healthy process, since it reflects the real needs of teachers and students of music. The major upcoming projects of jazz and Music Medals have required and will continue to require this integrated approach and during the current year we will be reorganising our marketing and promotional structures to reflect this momentum. It will also be apparent in the imminent launch of the Associated Board's redesigned website, which has been planned in detail over the last six months.

Although the Associated Board has prospered in 2002, we cannot but have anxieties about the international outlook and its potential impact on our work in the current year and beyond. The Associated Board will never ask its examiners to tour in countries against the advice of HM Government. Having said that, there can be few other organisations whose work is so directly relevant to international bridge building and reconciliation as that of the Associated Board. Music, education and international benchmarks are perhaps more needed now than ever before. In closing, I would once again like to express on behalf of the Associated Board my warmest thanks and appreciation to all members of staff, examiners, mentors, HLRs, representatives and consultants for their dedicated service to these ideals, which are themselves the mission of the Associated Board, throughout what proved to be a particularly active, demanding and successful year.

OBITUARIES

Gwyneth Edwards, Representative for St Kitts, died in 2002. She had been the Associated Board Representative since 2001 after taking over from her sister, Cynthia Edwards.

Dilys Mierzynski, HLR for Liverpool, died in October 2002. Her contribution during twenty years as HLR for one of the UK's biggest centres was outstanding. She was a well-known and well-loved figure to the many candidates, teachers and examiners who met her over the years.

June Scriven, HLR for Stafford for twelve years, died in May 2002. She ran the centre extremely efficiently and additionally held a very successful High Scorers' Concert only days before she died.

Dorothy Skelton, HLR for Leeds, died in May 2002. She had been HLR since 1989 and was involved with the exams for many years before then, tirelessly overseeing exam arrangements and supporting local candidates and their teachers.
